This bill is so poorly written it gives Oregon a blank slate in ways it can create roadblocks for families and businesses that work in agriculture. If there is a stream running across a property that isn't already designated, this bill will enable the government and o create charges and penalties for water use and create great uncertainty for them as they attempt to plan for their futures.

This is also loaded with language that enables people political or scientific biases to disrupt any use they find against those biases.

It is unfair, calculating and wrong.

I urge you to think of our families and businesses that rely on these water sources to survive and stand against this unnecessary and pernicious bill.
