This would be amazing. There is so much stress financially & emotionally when it comes to renting. You are often expected to pay first, last & sometimes on top of that a security deposit. That doesn't even include the pet deposit. Moving costs thousands of dollars, when just to start you're required to pay to just APPLY. It's often non-refundable. I just moved and paid $75 for an application fee, my roommates did as well. Since this was non-refundable, should we have not been accepted, the landlord would have still made $225 from us. That $75 for me is relevant to a utility bill which I had to give away to a piece of paper for someone to make money off of while it made me miss paying a bill on time.
