Measure, Appointment or Topic: HB2025

At some point, the state has to start living within its budget. Every legislative session, it seems like the Governor and lawmakers are asking for more money from Oregonians who are already stretched thin. These repeated calls for increased funding are out of step with what many people—especially retirees and lower-income households—can realistically afford. Instead of constantly seeking new revenue, the legislature should prioritize a thorough review of state agencies, particularly the Department of Transportation, and eliminate unnecessary spending. As for our household, we're firmly opposed to any new tax hikes
