

Submitter: Joe Freiburger

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Joint Committee On Transportation Reinvestment

Measure, Appointment or Topic: HB2025

Hello, increasing taxes and fees on people who rely on their automobiles to commute to and from work is unjust. This would harm working families who rely on their automobiles. I would honestly rather have a sales tax add to purchasing goods than increase any other tax anywhere. I can't choose whether or not I drive to work. Gas is already outrageously high and adding a 15 cents per gallon tax would make it even worse. And then as far as the bicycle tax increase, why? If you want to incentivize people to do something, you make it cheaper. If anything, there should be a tax credit if I bike to work. If your going to charge me per mile for every mile I drive, then you better give me a refundable credit for every mile I run or bike.