In this day of unaffordability it is a shame that the governments only answer is to make everything even more unaffordable, there are places you can reallocate your funding from to make these gaps up, new fees, taxes, tolls or charges are unacceptable. If you need an example of how more money doesn't change a thing look no further than California, although it seems as though one party is looking to California as the "super majority" reach into the pockets of Oregonians to fund evermore "services" that are deloveeed by their friends with non profits. Don't ruin Oregon by making it like California.
