I have lived in Oregon most of life, and have chosen to raise a family here. I don't want to leave Oregon and have chosen to stay despite having family in other states with much lower cost of living. The ever increasing taxation of Oregonians is driving my friends out and could eventually drive my family out to other states where we could afford more with less. At some point, our state and local government needs to be held accountable for how our money is being allocated. The answer is not more tax revenue. The answer is a budget that stays within its means. The future of Oregonians is not bright under another tax increase. I want to see my family stay here but other cheaper states and looking more enticing as we continue to hear more and more tax chatterings.
