Action sports are inherently dangerous, it is the responsibility of the individual to be aware of risk before taking part. No different than driving a car on the road where the consequences of a mistake are life and death, but it's still up to the driver to make the educated decision to get behind the wheel. The ruling in 2014 did not achieve what it was trying to and instead has been a detriment to the outdoors across the state (which is likely Oregon's biggest attraction both for locals and travelers). Change is needed and it starts by supporting those who provide the opportunity to enjoy the great outdoors.
