Oregon is known for its greenery and lush habitat. There are trees that have been alive longer than you have. Respect your elders. Please, don't allow industry to destroy what makes Oregon great.

I love hiking in Oregon's forests. And camping. Exploring nature is a blessing and we should preserve the environment for future generations. I feel like being aligned with nature is an Oregonian trait that should be encouraged.

I understand that industry needs materials, but they should be mindful of environmental impact. Logging old-growth forests is not a good way to acquire resources. Industry should plant more trees or find other materials. Things don't have to be manufactured from trees.
