My wife and I normally stay out of politics, what you people are doing is downright dishonest. The referendum petition that was approved by the state government was very clear in its verbiage about being voted on in November. Got more than the required amount signatures, then certified by the state government making it a legally actionable item. After governor Kotek couldn't remove it due to it being unconstitutional (seems like she should have looked into it before trying). Now with the very short time you have in session you want to move it to May ballot?!

Actions speak louder than words and your actions are actively disenfranchising a whole class of people. That signed a referendum stating to be voted on in November ballot and the state government approved and certified every step of the way. I didn't even sign the referendum, that should give you a scale for how dishonest and unacceptable your actions are. Where you got people that actively stay out of politics writing to you saying this is wrong.
