

Hillsboro is a diverse and growing part of the Portland metro area and the Portland area is famous for being mindful about community and sustainability and supporting local farmers and businesses. Everything about this project is focused on helping one industry with nonlocal players getting all the benefit and leaving the local community with less beauty, less land for agriculture or housing or play, and data centers that will use more water and power that the area needs for its own residents. It is unfortunate that there are people that believe data centers are the future, and not that the people of the community are the future. I believe that this endeavor is a short sighted investment into the city of Hillsboro and that the community deserves better than a governing body that chooses profits over their constituents
