I'm tired of Oregon leaders continuing to reach into taxpayers' pockets. It is not the public's responsibility to make up for budgeting decisions made in Salem. Many families are already living paycheck to paycheck, and the Kicker is money that belongs back in the hands of taxpayers — where it can support household stability and flow back into our local economy. Instead of redirecting these funds, the legislature should focus on living within its means and managing the record revenues already being allocated. Oregonians need real relief, and the constant cycle of higher taxes and rising costs needs to stop.
